Bag

Date

late 19th to early 20th Century

Primary Maker

Ojibwe

Medium

Leather, glass beads and thread

Description

Leather beaded bandolier bag made by the Ojibwe culture of the Great Lakes region. A divergent piece because of bird motif executed in cut glass faceted beads in orange and red with green leaves against light blue seed bead background; possibly American influenced style "frame" of yellow, black and red. Possibly an earlier work. Piece has a floral stitch with two threads: one laid down with beads in curvilinear pattern, the other used to anchor beads in place.
